Loon Chick Watch 2018 Has Begun!

For the very first time, we have the amazing opportunity to watch in real-time the nesting of our Moon Lake loon pair. If all goes according to plan, and the black flies are tolerable, on or around June 16 we should also see the new baby chick – up close and personal! The flies did temporarily drive the loon off the nest shortly after the egg was laid, but let's hope this did not impact the development of the chick.

Bob Turnquist prepared the nesting platform and placed the lake cam at the nest. Thanks, Bob, for your hard work! Watch for yourself at <https://moonlake.click2stream.com/>: If you have windows 10, if you click on the "window" in the far-left side of the task bar and scroll down the list of programs to "windows accessories", click and scroll down to "snipping tool" and move a copy to your desktop. Then you can capture a still of the web cam, as in the photo below.

Still shot from the web cam:
